

On Wednesday we had to get up at the same time as the day before, ate breakfast and also moved off and met at the parking spot at the same time as on Tuesday. This time we wanted to visit Windsor Castle, the home of the Queen. We arrived there at 11:00 am and had to go through a check point before we could go in. There were big and beautiful rooms and many pictures and decorated swords and other weapons. After we had seen these, we could go and get something to eat or go shopping there until we went back to London. This day we were back at the parking spot at 7:00 pm again and went straight home with our host mother. There she made dinner for us, we ate and then we had to get our bags done for the next day before we went to bed because this was already meant to be the last night there.
